

MORNING APPEAL.

SATURDAY, JUNE 2, 1877.

NOTES AND QUERIES.

June was sufficiently summer-like yesterday for a beginning of a new, and as we hope it will prove, a warmer season. We note that the month brings with its coming the full force and value of its name and traditions. This was evident in feminine costumery, especially calicoes, which are bright and clean and clear-starched. How do we know about such fripperies? Know! Why shouldn't we know, for patience' sake! We have not lived these thirty years not to know what calico is and something of what it costs and how it will wash. Besides, a calico gown is as much a sign and assurance of summer time as any roses or birds' nests. And then the sterner sex have ventured to bring out their straw hats, to exhibit shirt sleeves cinched up with brass gearings and garters, about the elbows, and to sit round in chairs at door fronts and look with the true romance of their nature at these same calicoes as they pass. A somewhat critical scrutiny prepares us to say that Summer has come.

TOM THUMB.

We pass with but small effort at ceremony from grave to gay, from momentous to the lightsome, from long to short, from the ponderous to the dwarfish. Last night Theodore Tilton in all the long-drawn effulgence of his altitude of stature and profundity of theme; to-night Tom Thumb in the compressed and concentrated littleness of his miniature magnificence. This means that variety is the spice of life. Nature does not make stereotypes. If she did, how would our entertainments discover the gap and chasm of difference between last night's lecture and this night's show? Do the Carson readers of the MORNING APPEAL need any telling of what is offered as an attraction at the theater this afternoon and evening? Many's the two-bit piece salted down by little hands in little wallets and little corners of little boxes for this afternoon's exhibit of famous Tom Thumb. Many's the lad of six years who will loom up above light little Tom, of forty-odd, like a giant over a pigmy. Many's the girl of eight or ten who will wish she had Tom for a proxy for her rag baby. And then there's to be a very entertaining show independent of Tom's colossal littleness. But we need not attempt to tell anybody anything. Everybody knows all about it; and the youngsters have got it a good deal more to heart than any older. There are no reserved seats for the afternoon. But all who like to have a close look at the stage and who are going to-night had better go to the box office. We hear that there are some of our townies who are interested, substantially, in the strike at Jeff Davis's Peak, White Pine county. A stockish man told this veracious chronicler yesterday afternoon that he and some others hereabout had feet by the many hundred in these new gold diggings. There is balu in Gilead! We find that there is a very general feeling of hopefulness that Mr. Sharon's trip to and through these parts will be productive of a turn for the better. Somehow the people know that Sharon is one of the sort of capitalists who, when they take hold of any enterprise, push it along with an energetic hand. The impression seems to be that he has taken a new interest in stocks and mills and railway extensions. Time was when he used to be looked to for an occasional "deal" in stocks. If he were to snite the clouds which lower about our house and break this spell of business depression and gloom it would be what there is an abundant faith to believe he, of all living men can do. He has the courage, the managing ability; the genius of inspiration, the sagacity and the strength to do more, we believe than any other one man on all this coast. More power to him. We feel that we are the making of a most masterful ornithologist. It is among the possibilities that we shall do for the Nevada birds what Sir John Lubbock has done for the ants and Seth Green has done for the fishes, if we meet with encouragement. We described in a brief sketch the other day what was doing by a pair of ambitious wrens whose acquaintance we have formed since the first of May. Latterly we have been cultivating a more remote but not less instructive acquaintance with a newly married pair of yellow birds (sylicia aestiva). These small friends of ours turned out very early one morning quite lately and before the dwellers in the house hard by had got stirring, completed, almost wholly, a neat and cosy nest in a rose bush which stands against a trellis that is fastened to the front porch. All the infancy (and the older ones for that matter) were greatly delighted at the near neighborhood of these trustful and enterprising birds; and there were not a few plans to quietly watch the eggs and the hatching and the coming and growth of the fledglings. But these yellow birds were wiser than their observers thought. The next morning that nest was all unwoven and carried away! They had not left a single string or sprig or bit of down. What we have learnt is that these birds not only practice prudence but economy. They take no chances of rude disturbance; and they also waste no building materials.

Mrs. E. A. Pollard, widow of the Southern historian of the war of the Rebellion, is on her way to Virginia to lecture there.

THEODORE TILTON'S LECTURE.

It is greatly to be lamented—for their own sakes—that so many of our people failed to hear Mr. Tilton's lecture last night. We have never had so rich an intellectual treat before. He has scholarship, imagery, oratorship and a limitless fund of perfect language at his command. These, with a splendid presence and a power of elocution which is exceedingly apt and effective, make him the model of a polished lecturer. The almost necessary artificialities of his style are not pleasant, at the outset; but the graces of his discourse come to soften and blend themselves with his highly animated and dramatic manner, and one is soon carried away by the emotions of the occasion. "This is a rhapsody" said one cool critic as we were leaving the hall. It shows what an unmistakable genius can do. There is no ignoring these splendid gifts. They will assert and maintain themselves. "The problem of Life" is the development of character. The lecture, so called, is an elegant disquisition—a spoken essay. We will not do ourselves or Mr. Tilton the injustice of attempting a synopsis. It is in all respects brilliant and fascinating.

As to the history of our friend, Kirchner's coming by the name of Father Hyacinthe, Mr. Cassidy, in the Eureka Sentinel relates as follows: It happened in the earlier and better days of White Pine. Kirchner was barkeeper for Jack Perry, and the writer was local itemizer of the old Inland Empire published at Hamilton. It was just then that Pere Hyacinthe, booted from the church and got married. The Eastern journals illustrated him. A Hamilton news vendor placed on our table the usual literary favors and among the rest was Leslies or somebody with a cut of the distinguished seceding priest. It became our painful duty (we always did hate to write puffs) to record the liberality and enterprise of the address news dealer, and, hitting upon the profile of the renowned Hyacinthe as prominently, if not accurately brought to the front, we dashed into him with a paragraph in the course of which we said he was an exact counterpart of Jack Perry's barkeeper. From that day Kirchner has gone by the name of "Father Hyacinthe," and the title is likely to stay with him during the remainder of his pilgrimage here below. We sometimes fear that he will not be able to "shake" it in the world to come.

BULLION AT THE MINT.—There were received at the Carson Mint yesterday morning 100 bars of fine bullion. This is a transfer from the San Francisco Mint and is a part of the recent purchase from the Bonanza Firm of 1,500,000 ounces.

Harrington who murdered Sullivan at Virginia City has been granted a new trial by the Supreme Court. We have a suspicion that this persistent malefactor will end his days in the Penitentiary.

Peaches have found their dear selves exposed for sale in our market. They are an incitement to economy, being a half dollar a pound.

Mr. John McQuaid and Col. E. B. Stonehill of the Storey County Bar, were in the city yesterday.

The Tom Thumb Matinee will take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Mr. Tilton will lecture to-night in Virginia City on "Motive Power."

The Grand Opera House, San Francisco, has been sold at Sheriff's sale to satisfy a mortgage securing the large amount of $350,000. The mortgage is held by the Bank of California.

For plotting against the peace of Spain, Senor Reviz Zorilla has been expelled from France. How vast a rumpus Mr. Z. had projected, and what on, are facts not stated.

Battle Mountain has an artesian well which flows no less than 3000 gallons in 24 hours. There are others thereabout which yield about an equal quantity of water.
